the other as a soldier.

Horace Greeley stood forth as a Reformer and Abolitionist. President Grant enlisted as a Pro-Slavery Democrat, and at the election of James Buchanan, fortified by his vote all the pretensions of slavery, including the Dred Scott decision. Horace Greeley from early life was earnest and constant against slavery, full of sympathy with the colored race, and always and foremost in the great battle for their rights.

Versions are always welcome, and not the less so because the change is in the multitude, other than in individuals. A political party should not, it it could, shut its doors, against converts, whether counted by the score, numbered or thousands. It is also idle to say that the election of Greeley as President, with Gratz Brown as Vice-President, both unchangeable Republicans, will be a return of the Democratic party to power. with the colored race, and always and foremost in the great battle for their rights. Gen. Grant, except as a soldier summoned by a terrible accident of war, never did anything against slavery, nor has he at any time snown any sympathy with the colored race. Horace Greeley earnestly desired that his colored fellow citizens should vote and ably championed impartial suffrage, but President Grant was on the other side.

President Grant, who could lobby so assiduously for his San Domingo scheme, full of wrongs to the colored race, could do nothing for this beneficent measure. During the session of Congress it was discussed constantly, and the colored people everywhere hung upon the debates, but there was no word of heartfel sympathy from the President.

Among the antecedents I deem it my duty to mention the little capacity and less industry of the President in protecting the colored people and in assuring peace at the South.
